

Contents

About the Authors	iv
Overview of the seven volumes	v
From the Publishers	vi
Also by Anatoly T. Fomenko	vii
Also by Gleb V. Nosovski	viii
Foreword.....	3

Part I: RUSSIA AS THE CENTRE OF THE “MONGOLIAN” EMPIRE AND ITS ROLE IN MEDIAEVAL CIVILIZATION

Chapter 1 “Peculiar” geographical names on the maps of the XVIII century

1. Introduction	9
2. The meaning of the word “Mongolia” as used by the authors	10
3. The Kuban Tartars as the Kuban Cossacks on the maps of Russia dating from the epoch of Peter the Great	10
4. The identity of Persia	12
5. Czar-Grad and the multiple Saray cities on the maps dating from the epoch of Peter the Great	13
6. The dating of 750 as inscribed upon a Russian naval chart proves that Empress Yelizaveta Petrovna reigned in the eighth century as counted from the Nativity of Christ, and not the XVIII	14
7. On some maps of the XVIII century Russia and Moscovia are written as names that refer to different region	17
8. The name of the Russian Empire in the maps of the XVIII century	20
9. The former identity of Lithuania	29

Chapter 2 Russian history as reflected in coins

1. A general characteristic of Russian coinage	30
2. The mysterious period of “coinage absence” in Russian history	33
3. Strange absence of golden coinage from the Western European currency of the VIII-XIII century	36
4. The origins of the bicephalous eagle as seen on Russian coins	37

5. The Tartar and Russian names of the coins circulating among the Russians and the Tartars	37
6. Russian and Tartar lettering and the presumably “meaningless inscriptions” on the ancient coins of the Muscovite principality	39
7. Bilingual lettering on the Russian coins of the XIV century (Russian and Tartar)	41
8. The locations of the Tartar mints	42
9. Why Great Prince Ivan III put the Hungarian coat of arms on some of his coins	42
10. Some general considerations in re numismatic history	43
10.1. The similarity or dissimilarity of portraits on various coins	43
10.2. The bizarre hoardings of “long-term accumulation”	43
10.3. Strange destructions of “ancient” coin hoardings in the Middle Ages	44
10.4. Petrarch (a.k.a. the “ancient” Plutarch?) as the first numismatist	44
10.5. The “ancient” Golden Fleece and its double from the XV century	44
10.6. Mediaeval geographical names were in a state of constant flux	45
10.7. Dates as indicated on antique coins	46
10.8. Is it possible to date sepulchres by the coins found therein?	46

Chapter 3 Vestiges of the Great = “Mongolian” Empire in documents and on the artefacts found in Europe and Asia

1. The allegedly illegible inscriptions on mediaeval swords	47
2. Italian and German swords with Arabic lettering	53
3. The reason why the coronation mantle of the Holy Roman Empire is covered in Arabic lettering exclusively	54
4. Church Slavonic inscription in the glagolitsa script in the Catholic Cathedral of St. Vitus in Prague	56
5. The peculiar title of Alexei Mikhailovich Romanov, a Russian Czar of the XVII century, as inscribed on his seal	56
6. Stone effigies on ancient Russian grave-mounds. The “stone maids of the Polovtsy”	57
7. N. A. Morozov’s input into historical science is great; however, his pro-Western theory is erroneous	62
8. The Western European countries and their fear of the “Mongols and Tartars”	62
9. The Great = “Mongolian” conquest resulted in a westward migration of geographical names	63
9.1. The Volga and the Bulgarians	63
9.2. On the names of the rivers (such as the Don, the Danube, the Dnepr and the Dniester)	63
9.3. The hussars, the Khazars, the cuirassiers and the Czar-Assyrians (or Sar-Russians)	64
9.4. The actual identity of the Khazars	65
9.5. Slavic names on the map of the Western Europe	66

Part II: CHINA. THE NEW CHRONOLOGY AND CONCEPTION OF CHINESE HISTORY. OUR HYPOTHESIS

Introduction	70
--------------------	----

Chapter 4 Astronomical events in the “ancient” Chinese chronicles

1. The actual astronomical events described in Chinese chronicles	71
---	----

2. Chinese eclipses	72
3. Chinese horoscopes	73
4. The “ancient” Chinese 60-year cycle and its origins	74
5. When did the Chinese invent the telescope?	74

Chapter 5 Chinese comets

1. Suspiciously high comet observation frequency in China	76
2. Years of comet observations in China	79
3. European comets and their observation dates	80
4. A comparison of the Chinese and European comet rosters	81
5. Comet Halley	83
5.1. Introduction	83
5.2. The analysis of Planet Halley’s recurrence cycles	84
5.2.1. A list of the dates of Comet Halley’s alleged sightings	84
5.2.2. What happened to Comet Halley in 1986? The reasons why it shifted to the other hemisphere	85
5.2.3. What has been happening to Comet Halley after 1759? The reason why its recurrence cycles have become irregular	86
5.2.4. The provenance of the “Chinese law of periodicity” for Comet Halley	89
5.2.5. Dating the introduction of fabricated data into the “observation records” of Comet Halley	92
5.2.6. On the chaotic character of Comet Halley’s motion	93
5.2.7. Suspiciously high frequency of improbable occurrences in Scaigerian history	94
5.3. In re the comet of Charles V	95
5.4. Strange duplicates with the periodicity of 540 years inherent in the Chinese and European comet rosters	95

Chapter 6 Parallels between the history of Europe and the “ancient” China

1. A general characteristic of Chinese history	96
1.1. The reason why Chinese history is so complex	96
1.2. Chinese names of persons and places	98
1.2.1. What we come up with when we read Chinese texts and translate Chinese names	98
1.2.2. European nations on the Chinese arena	98
2. The landmarks of the parallelism between the Chinese and the phantom European history before the X century AD	102
3. Parallelism key points between the Chinese and Roman-Byzantium history of the X-XIV centuries	105
3.1. Parallels between the Macedonian conquest in Europe and the Cidanian conquest in China	105
3.2. Baptism in China and Russia in the X century	106
3.3. Son of Heaven in China in the XI century AD. Guildebrand as reflection of Jesus Christ?	107
3.4. Reflection of the First Crusade In 1099 AD in the “Chinese History”	107
3.5. Century shift in the “Chinese history” of the XI century	108

3.6. Kaifeng as the capital of the Chinese Empire “R”	108
3.7. Reflection of the Fourth Crusade in the “Chinese history”	108
4. Chinese history of Cidanés, the kingdom of the Prester John, and the emergence of the “Mongolian” Empire	109
4.1. Copying on paper of the prehistory of “Mongolian” Empire to the European and allegedly Eastern “Chinese” history	109
4.2. History of the “Mongolian” Empire in the “Chinese” chronicles	109
4.2.1. Roman and Nicean Empires in the “Chinese” chronicles	109
4.2.2. Ilya Dashi	110
4.2.3. Gurkhan	110
4.2.4. “Chinese” Imil and ancient Russian River Ilmer	111
4.2.5. “Chinese” city of Balasagun and old Russian city of Balakhna	111
4.2.6. “Chinese” Semirechie-Seven Rivers	111
4.2.7. Ilya Dashi becomes a chief of a huge army in the Semireche	111
4.2.8. About the name China. Why China is called China	112
4.2.9. Grandiose “ancient Chinese” battle in XIII century AD	113
4.2.10. The Christianity of Kara-Kitai (China). The Czar Skifs?	113
4.2.11. “Chinese” chronicles, talking the same time, were elongated by a century	114
4.2.12. When were the European chronicles transplanted to China?	114
5. The history of China after the XV century	114
5.1. When, why and who built the Great Chinese Wall	114
5.2. How many months it takes to go from China to Kitai	125
5.2.1. Where Kitai was at the time of Afanasy Nikitin	125
5.2.2. Bilingual Russia of the XV century	126
5.3. Why Beijing is being called Beijing	128
5.4. Kitai or Bogdai?	129
5.5. Who are the Buddhists?	129
5.6. Three “Mongolian” dynasties in the history of China	130
5.7. China is called in European chronicles “Country of Sers.” But who are the Sers?	130
5.8. The epoch of Manjous – the beginning of the reliable history of China	130
6. “Mongolian” Manjou Golden (Ch’ing) dynasty in China	131
6.1. What is known about Manjous in Scaligerian history?	131
6.2. Manjou monumental military construction in China	131
6.3. The Golden Empire of Manjous and the Golden Horde	132
6.4. Religion of Manjous	132
6.5. The trust of Manjou in their right to rule the world	132
6.6. Did the Chinese under the rule of Manjou copy the “ancient models”?	133
6.7. How was the Chinese History created?	133
6.8. What books from the Middle Ages the Chinese Emperor burnt in the “III century BC”?	134
6.9. Who are those Manjous?	135
6.10. The unsuccessful attempts of Manjous to avoid assimilation	135
7. Our reconstruction	136
8. What happened in the territory of contemporary China before the XVII century AD	137

9. Were paper, gunpowder, and silk really invented in China?	137
10. About the historical sources of modern Mongols	138
11. Where China is shown on old maps?	140
12. Conclusion	141

Chapter 7 The Great = “Mongolian” conquest of Japan

1. The military caste of the Japanese Samurai as the descendants of the XIV-XV century conquerors of Japan originating from the Horde	143
2. Mediaeval Japan could have been a Christian country. Traces of Russia, or the Horde, in Japan	145
3. The manufacture of the famous Samurai swords involved the “Tartar Process” in the Middle Ages	151

Part III: SCYTHIA AND THE GREAT MIGRATION. THE COLONIZATION OF EUROPE, AFRICA AND ASIA BY RUSSIA, OR THE HORDE, IN THE XIV CENTURY

Chapter 8 West Europeans writing about the Great = “Mongolian” Russia

1. Invasion into Europe, the Mediterranean region and Asia under Ivan Kalita (Batu-Khan). The foundation of the Great = “Mongolian” Empire	155
1.1. Scaligerian chronology of the “Mongolian” invasion	155
1.2. The reaction of the Western Europe to the “Mongolian” invasion	156
1.3. Negotiations with the “Mongols”. The curt response sent by Guyuk-Khan to the Pope	157
1.4. Christianity of the “Mongols”	157
1.5. The missive sent to the French king by the “Mongolian” Khan	158
1.6. The second armed invasion of the Russians as a real menace in the late XVI – early XVII century	159
1.7. German historians of the second half of the XIX century still remembered much of the authentic mediaeval history	159
1.7.1. Mediaeval authors were of the opinion that the famous Byzantine Emperor Justinian was Slavic	160
1.7.2. The Slavic conquest of the Balkans and the “ancient” Greece	160
1.7.3. Turkish princes minted coins with representations of Christ with a sceptre and a Christian orb, presumably “failing to comprehend” the meaning of these symbols	161
1.8. Conclusion	161
2. The “Mongolian” Empire and the famous Christian kingdom of Presbyter Johannes. Khans of the “Mongols” as Orthodox Christians	162
3. Great Tartary and China	165
4. Mediaeval Western reports about the Kingdom of Presbyter Johannes, or the Russian Empire (the Horde) in the XIV-XVI century	166
4.1. The “antiquity” and the Middle Ages are fused together on geographical maps	166
4.2. The “Mongol” (Russian) Horde of the XIV-XVI century described in the Bible and the Koran as the famous nations of Gog and Magog	166
4.3. The war between the Russian “Mongol and Tartar” Horde and the “ancient” Alexander the Great	168

4.3.1. The wars against Gog and Magog and the gigantic wall that held them “in seclusion”	168
4.3.2. The wall of Gog and Magog: the time and place of its construction	169
4.4. The “Mongolian” conquest as described by later Western European chroniclers	171
5. The Kingdom of Presbyter Johannes, or the Russian and Ataman Horde as the dominant power of the XIV-XVI century	173
5.1. Presbyter Johannes as the liege of the Western rulers	173
5.2. The foundation of the “Mongolian” Empire and the divide of its Eurasian part three hundred years later into Russia, Turkey and the Western Europe ...	176
5.3. A general view of the Eurasian map	177
5.4. The opposition between the Atamans and Russia, or the Horde. The part played by the Romanovs	181
6. A new look on the Kingdom of Presbyter Johannes	182
6.1. Presbyter Johannes	182
6.2. European names distorted beyond recognition in later Chinese transcription	183
6.3. Europeans called China “Land of the Ceres”	183
6.4. The famous mediaeval “Epistle of Presbyter Johannes” as an authentic document describing the life of the ancient Russia, or “Mongolia”	183
6.5. The river of Paradise flowing through the kingdom of Presbyter Johannes	185
6.5.1. The two rivers: Don and Edon	185
6.5.2. River Volga was also known as “Don”	185
6.5.3. River Physon and Russian River Teza	185
6.5.4. River Volga (or Ra) as a “river or paradise”. Rai as the Russian for “paradise”	186
6.5.5. The birthplace of Presbyter Johannes	186
6.5.6. Khulna, the capital city of the Presbyter’s kingdom, identifiable as Yaroslavl, or Novgorod the Great (also known as Kholmgrad)	186
6.5.7. The description of the flood on the great Indian river Volga in the epistle of Presbyter Johannes	187
6.5.8. Which church is famous for the “parting of the waters” around it on the Feast of St. Thomas?	188
6.6. The identity and location of the ancient India	189
6.7. What the West Europeans of the XII-XVI century knew about India	189

Chapter 9 The Slavic conquest of Europe and Asia. A rare book of Mauro Orbini about the “Slavic Expansion”

1. Did the Western Europe remember the “Mongolian” conquest to have been undertaken by the Slavs?	192
2. Why did Peter the Great build St. Petersburg amidst the swamps? The book of Mauro Orbini	194
3. The conquest of Europe and Asia by the Slavs according to Orbini’s book	196
4. Our conception explains the book of Orbini	198
5. The parties that went to battle and won, and the ones that lost, but wrote history	198
6. Where did Orbini conduct his research?	200
7. Orbini was aware that historians would not like his work	201

8. The list of sources used by Orbini	202
9. Orbini's book uses Western European materials	202
10. Our point of view on Orbini's book	203
11. The use of the Cyrillic alphabet in the Western Europe as reported by Orbini	203
12. Orbini on the Slavic Goths	203
13. Orbini on the Russian Slavs, or the Muscovites	204
14. Orbini on the Huns and Attila as a Russian warlord	205
15. Hungary in the title of the Russian Czars	206
16. Orbini on the campaigns of the Russian Muscovites in the epoch of the "Antiquity"	206
17. Orbini on the "Finns, or Fennes, a Slavic tribe"	206
18. Orbini on the "Slavic Dacians"	206
19. Orbini on the "Norman Slavs"	206
20. Orbini on the Amazons – "the famed Slavic warrior women"	207

Chapter 10 The Slavs in European history as per the book of Volanskiy and Klassen

1. Why the books of Orbini, Chertkov, Volanskiy, Klassen and many others were neither refuted, nor accepted	209
2. Evidence of Slavic presence in the Western Europe perceived as perfectly natural from the viewpoint of our conception	210
3. F. Volanskiy, Y. I. Klassen and their historical research	210
4. Slavic presence in Europe was described in many books dating up until the XVIII century	212

Chapter 11 Mediaeval Scandinavian maps and geographical œuvres report the "Mongolian" conquest of Eurasia and Africa

1. A general characteristic of geographical tractates	213
1.1. The time most Scandinavian tractates on geography were written	213
1.2. The physical appearance of the first maps	216
1.3. The same name with slight variations can be found all across the world on the map	216
1.4. The multiplication of names on the world map: when and how did it happen?	217
1.5. A useful alphabetic list of geographical names and their identifications compiled by the authors from Scandinavian tractates and names	218
2. Japheth as the son of the Biblical Noah. The nation that bore this name and its geographical localisation	219
2.1. The offspring of the Biblical Japheth populated all of Europe	219
2.2. The first son, or the Biblical Magog	220
2.3. The second son, or the Biblical Madai	220
2.4. The third son, or the Biblical Javan (Ivan)	221
2.5. The fourth son, or the Biblical Tiras (Turk)	221
2.6. The fifth son, or the Biblical Tubal (Tobol)	222
2.7. The sixth son, or the Biblical Gomer	223
2.8. The seventh son, or the Biblical Meshech (Mosoch)	223
2.9. Thus, who are the sons of the Biblical Japheth?	224
3. The Trojan conquest of Europe	224

3.1. The origins of the settlers who populated Russia, Norway, Iceland and Greenland	224
3.2. It turns out that Europe, Britain and Scandinavia were populated by either the Turks or the Asian Trojans	225
3.3. The exodus of the Trojans from Byzantium in the XIII-XIV century virtually coincided with the beginning of the “Mongolian” conquest	225
3.4. True stories of medieval Scandinavians do not agree with Scaliger history	226
3.5. Other European countries were also supposedly mistaken presuming that their nations descended from the Trojans	227
3.6. The settlement of England by the Britons – the Trojans and their descendants in the XIII-XIV century AD	228
4. Slavic conquest of Europe allegedly of the VI-VII centuries AD as one of the reflections of the Russian “Mongolian” conquest of the XIV-XV century	228
5. Comparison of the West and the East in the works of A. S. Khomyakov	229
5.1. About Alexey Stepanovich Khomyakov	229
5.2. A. S. Khomiakov about the distortion of the Russian history by the West European authors	231
5.3. Don and Rona – old Slavic names of the river	231
5.4. Who are Bulgarians	232
5.5. A. S. Khomyakov on the traces of the Slavic conquest in Western Europe	232

Chapter 12 Western Europe of the XIV-XVI century as part of the Great = “Mongolian” Empire

1. The seemingly strange, yet perfectly understandable attitude of the Romanovs to the Russian sources mentioning the Western Europe	234
2. Were the inhabitants of the pre-Romanovian Russia really “afraid of the foreigners,” as the Romanovian historians claim?	235
3. Europe invaded by the Ottoman = Ataman Turks. The reason why they were referred to as “Tartars”	235
3.1. The beginning of the invasion	235
3.2. Why the Russian “Legend” refers to the Turks as to Tartars. The date of its creation	236
3.3. The Venetian Republic paying tribute to the Ottomans = Atamans	238
3.4. A strike at the centre of Europe. Why Europeans were eager to pay their tribute to the Atamans in advance and not merely on time	238
3.5. “Mongolian” vicegerent, or the rulers of the Western Europe, still paid tribute to the Ottomans = Atamans at the end of the XVI century	239
3.6. France, Britain and the Atamans	239
4. The gilded domes of Russia. What was Russia’s source of silver, given that it owned no silver mines in that epoch?	240
4.1. Were the Ottomans (Atamans) the only recipients of the tribute paid in silver by the mediaeval Western Europe?	240
4.2. Mediaeval trade between the West and the East. The West grew poorer and the East got richer	242
4.3. The Silk Road	244
4.4. When was the custom of washing hands before meals introduced in the Western Europe?	245
4.5. What the Russians used the Western silver and gold for	247

5. Futile attempts of the Westerners to drive a wedge between the allied forces of the ancient Russia and the Ottoman = Ataman Turks	249
6. How the Western Europe finally succeeded in making Russia and Turkey hostile towards each other	250
7. The joy of liberty	251
8. Mediaeval Russian accounts of the Western Europe	252
8.1. In re the XV century Rome in Italy	252
8.2. On the life of the Western countries in general	252
8.3. The attitude to the Bible in the Western Europe	253
8.4. The global chronicle genre. The predecessors (or, rather, contemporaries) of Scaliger and Petavius	254
9. Moscow as Third Rome	256
9.1. The moniker “Third Rome” as used for referring to Moscow finally explained	256
9.2. Moscow as the “New Jerusalem”	258
9.3. “Russia and Jerusalem are wherever one finds the true faith”	262
9.4. The source of the decree about the foundation of the New Inquisition in the Western Europe	263
10. How veracious is our idea of the mediaeval Western inquisition?	265
11. The identity of St. George	265
11.1. The Russian cult of St. George the Victorious	265
11.2. The cult of St. George the Victorious in Europe and Asia	269
11.3. George as the “ancient” warrior Perseus	270
11.4. The famous “ancient Greek” myth of the terrifying gorgon Medusa as a memory of the invasion of George’s Horde	271
11.5. Gorgon = George = Genghis-Khan represented in the symbolism of the “ancient” goddess Athena	274
11.6. Ares, God of War: Ross (Russ)?	275
11.7. The Franks, the Turks and the Tartars. Paris, the Persians and the Russians	276
11.8. Orders of St. George in Russia and in the Western Europe	276
11.9. Georgiy the Victorious seizes Jerusalem = Constantinople. The Bosphorus as the Sound of St. George	276
11.10. The sound of St. George in Britain	279
12. The knightly name of Rosh = Russ in crusade history	280
13. Gog, the Mongols and the Tartars as Frankish crusader knights	280
14. Direct participation of the Russian troops in the conquest of Constantinople	281
15. History of firearms: is our perception correct?	282
16. Did the Horde conquer Transcaucasia or the Western Europe?	282
17. The toponymy of Stockholm, the capital of Sweden	283
18. The reason why the famous icon of Our Lady of Kykkos from Cyprus is still concealed from public sight	283
19. “Mongolian” = the Great Empire was split in the XVII century	286
19.1. Why “Mongolian” Empire, the first and single really world empire, through the three hundred years was splitted	286
19.2. Diplomatic success of Western Europe in its struggle with Empire in the XVI-XVII century	286

19.3. Who, when and why distorted the history of Antiquity, that is the history of the XI-XVI century	287
19.3.1. Involuntary mistakes and intentional falsifications	287
19.3.2. Today Scaliger chronological duplicates are useful for the reconstruction of the correct history	288
19.4. Dispute on which religion is more ancient. Why it is better to use a longer ancient history	289
19.5. Military and state support for the four religions of the XVII century and Scaligerian ranking of religions by their age	289
19.6. Ferrara-Florentine Concil and failed attempt in the XV or XVI century to prevent the Church split	290
20. Pogrom of the Russian Horde history on the example of Kirillo-Belozersky Monastery	292

Part IV: WESTERN EUROPEAN ARCHAEOLOGY, MEDIAEVAL CARTOGRAPHY AND GEOGRAPHY CONFIRM OUR RECONSTRUCTION

Chapter 13 Surviving mediaeval geographical world maps do not contradict our reconstruction

1. Our analysis of the maps collected in the fundamental atlas entitled “The Art of Cartography”	297
2. Conclusions made on the basis of the mediaeval maps	301
2.1. Why the Great Wall of China doesn't figure on any maps predating 1617 in the “Art of Cartography” atlas	301
2.2. Most ancient maps do not indicate the year of their compilation	302
2.3. Jerusalem as the primordial centre of the world. Indications of three cities (Jerusalem, Rome and Constantinople) appear on later maps	303
3. The evolution of the geographical descriptions and maps of the XI-XVI century. The condition they reached us in	305
3.1. The reason for the multiplication of names on the maps of the XIV-XVI century	305
3.2. How the Imperial geographic names were transplanted to new soil in the XVII-XVIII century, accompanied by their historical descriptions	308
3.3. Tedious descriptive diaries of actual voyages and thrilling tales written in comfortable studies	309

Chapter 14 The real contents of Marco Polo's famous book

1. Introduction. The identity of Marco Polo	311
2. Who was the real author of Marco Polo's book?	313
3. In what language did Marco Polo write or dictate his book?	313
4. Did Marco Polo visit the territory of modern China at all?	313
4.1. The location of the Great Wall of China	313
4.2. How about the tea?	314
4.3. Has Marco Polo seen Chinese women?	314
4.4. Where are the hieroglyphs?	314
4.5. What else did Marco Polo “ignore” about China?	314
4.6. What “indubitably Chinese phenomena” did Marco Polo notice during his visit to “China”?	315

5. Geographical names used by Marco Polo were considered his own inventions in Europe for two hundred years	315
6. What are the “islands” mentioned by Marco Polo?	315
7. Why modern commentators have to “correct” certain names used by Marco Polo, allegedly in error	315
8. What direction should one take in order to reach India and China from Italy?	317
9. Why Marco Polo mentions spices, silks and oriental wares in general when he tells us about India, or Russia	317
10. The toponymy of the name “India”	318
11. When and how were certain geographical names used by Marco Polo “localised”	318
12. Miniatures in the book of Marco Polo	320
12.1. What did they depict?	320
12.2. Miniature entitled “The Death of Genghis-Khan”	320
12.3. Miniature entitled “The Palace at Khan-Balyk”	321
12.4. Miniature entitled “Borus” (Boris?)	321
12.5. The identity of the people with canine heads	321
12.6. Turbans as native Russian headdress	323
12.7. Miniature entitled “Cynocephali”	324
12.8. Other miniatures from Marco Polo’s book	324
13. The “Kuznetskiy Most” in mediaeval China	333
14. The itinerary of Marco Polo	333
14.1. Futile attempts of the commentators to retrace the itinerary of Marco Polo	333
14.2. The location of Karakorum, or the Great Khan’s capital	334
14.3. Cossacks on the pages of Marco Polo’s book as the Great Khan’s guard	335
14.4. The Black Sea	335
14.5. The country of Mongolia	335
14.6. Amazonia	335
14.7. The great market and the customs office in the Russian city of Azov	336
14.8. Polo’s further itinerary	336
15. After Marco Polo	338
16. Summary	339
17. Addendum. Alaskan history	339

Chapter 15 The disappearing mystery of the Etruscans

1. The mighty, legendary and allegedly enigmatic Etruscans	345
2. What we know about the Etruscans	347
3. The “antiquity dispute” of Florence and Rome	349
4. The two theories of the Etruscans’ origins – the Northern and the Eastern	351
4.1. The Eastern Theory	351
4.2. The Northern Theory	352
5. How the Etruscans referred to themselves	352
6. Possible toponymy of the words “Etruscan” and “Tuscany”	352
7. The Etruscan Tarquins = Tarkhuns = Turkish Khans	352
8. Our explanation of the dispute between Florence and Rome	353
9. The famous Etruscan lupine statue of the Capitol and the date of its creation	355

10. Etruscans in the Bible	356
11. What was the Holy Book of the Etruscans called? What was the Etruscan religion?	356
12. The appearance of the Etruscan lettering	357
12.1. Which inscriptions are considered Etruscan	357
12.2. The Etruscan alphabet	359
12.3. The interpretation of Etruscan lettering according to Volanskiy	360
12.4. Volanskiy's examples	360
12.4.1. The headstone near Creccio	360
12.4.2. Boy with a goose	361
12.4.3. Boy with a bird	362
12.4.4. Double-sided cameo	362
12.5. The unspoken taboo to interpret Etruscan inscriptions with the aid of Slavonic languages	363
12.6. A fresh view of the Russian history stemming from our new understanding of the history of the Etruscans	364
13. Slavic archaeology in the Western Europe	368

Part V: ANCIENT EGYPT AS PART OF THE GREAT "MONGOLIAN" ATAMAN EMPIRE OF THE XIV-XVI CENTURY

Chapter 16 History and chronology of the "ancient" Egypt. A general overview

1. Our hypothesis	373
2. A brief account of the mediaeval Egyptian history	373
3. The erroneous Scaligerian foundation and the objective difficulties inherent in the consensual chronology of Egypt	374
4. The "ancient" Egypt of the Pharaohs as a Christian country	380
5. The construction tools used by the "ancient" Egyptians	383
6. The religious character of many "ancient" Egyptian monuments	384
7. What were the names of the Egyptian pharaohs?	393
8. Why it is presumed that before Champollion the Egyptian hieroglyphs were interpreted erroneously	393
9. The question of origins: do the Chinese have Egyptian ancestry, or vice versa?	396
10. The destruction of inscriptions found on the ancient artefacts of Russia and Egypt	396
11. Who destroyed the names of people, cities and countries written on the "ancient" Egyptian monuments? When was it done, and for what purpose?	397
12. The condition of the "ancient" Egyptian relics	400
13. The advent of the mighty Mamelukes to Egypt	402
13.1. The Mamelukes as the Cherkassian Cossacks. Scaligerian history admits that Egypt was conquered by the Cossacks	402
13.2. The Caucasus and the Cossacks	402
13.3. The Cherkassian Cossack Sultans in Egypt	403
14. Linguistic connexions between Russia and African Egypt in the Middle Ages	404
14.1. The alphabet used by the Egyptian Copts	404
14.2. Egyptian names in Russia	404
15. The confusion between the sounds R and L in Egyptian texts	406

16. “Ancient” Egyptian texts were often transcribed in consonant letters exclusively	406
17. A scheme of our reconstruction of Egyptian history	407

Chapter 17 The Trojan War of the XIII century and Pharaoh Ramses II. “Ancient” Egypt of the XIII-XVI century

1. The nation of Heta or the Cossack Goths. Russia, or the Horde, in Egyptian texts found upon Egyptian monuments	408
1.1. The Hitians, or the Mongols	408
1.2. King of the Goths	409
1.3. The land of Tana, or Tini	409
1.4. The Don Cossacks	410
1.5. Don as the “river of the Mongols”	410
1.6. Khaleb = Aleppo can be identified as Lipetsk, a city in Russia, or, alternatively, as Apulia in Italy or the Russian word for “bread” (“ khleb ”)	410
1.7. The Land of Canaan as the Land of the Khans	411
1.8. Russian names on Egyptian stones	411
1.9. Scaligerian history admits the existence of “armies hailing from the Caucasus” in the “ancient” Egypt	411
2. The Great City (citadel) of Kadesh in the “ancient” Egyptian texts	412
2.1. The city of Kadesh in the Land of the Amorrheans	412
2.2. Limanon = Rimanon = Roman	412
2.3. Kadesh as New Rome on the Bosporus	412
2.4. The city of Kadesh blocks the way to the Land of the Goths	413
3. The Canaan land of Ruthen	413
3.1. Russia, or the Horde of the Khans	413
3.2. Another reference to the city of Khaleb = Aleppo = Lipetsk in Russia (or the Russian word “ khleb ” – “bread”)	413
4. The land of Nakharain as the Nogai River (or, alternatively, Greece/ Byzantium)	413
5. Kita = Kitai (China), or Scythia	414
6. Syria and Assyria (or Ashur in the “ancient” Egyptian inscriptions) as Russia, or the Horde	414
7. Great Pharaoh Ramessu II = Ramses II = Roman Jesus	415
8. Ramses, or Roman Jesus as the deity of the Ottomans (Atamans)	416
9. The Trojan War of the XIII century, or the war of 1453 that ended with the conquest of Czar-Grad	418
10. Three peace pacts famous in Scaligerian history as reflections of one and the same pact signed between Russia and the Ottomans in 1253 or 1453	419
10.1. The name “Turks” is rather ambiguous	419
10.2. The peace pact signed between the Hittites and Pharaoh Ramses in the alleged XIII century BC	420
10.3. A peace pact signed between Syria and Egypt in 1253 AD	421
10.4. Peace pact signed between the Russians and the Greeks in the alleged IX-X century AD	421
10.5. The Greek Saint Mamas and the “ancient” Pharaoh Miamun as mentioned in the pact	421
10.6. A list of cities mentioned in the pact between Ramessu and the King of the Hittites	422

10.7. The Baptism of Russia as described in the “ancient” Egyptian texts	422
10.8. The Cossack circle in the “ancient” Egyptian descriptions	423
10.9. The Baptism of Russia and the marriage of the Great Prince and the Romean princess	423

Chapter 18 The XIV century “Mongolian” invasion into Egypt as the Hiksos epoch in the “ancient” Egypt

1. The identity of the “ancient” Hiksos dynasty	424
1.1. Were the Hiksos simple shepherds?	424
1.2. The Avars and Ruthenia (Russia, or the Horde)	425
1.3. The Hiksos Cossacks bring horses to Egypt	425
1.4. The names of the Hiksos kings	426
1.5. Phoenicia vs. Venice. The Slavs and the Veneds	426
1.6. The “ancient” Egyptian “sutekhs” as the Russian judges “ sudia ”	426
2. Why the names of nearly all the Hiksos = Cossack kings happen to be chiselled off the monuments of the “ancient” Egypt	426
3. The famous Great Sphinx on the Gizeh Plain was built by the Hiksos (the Mamelukes)	427
4. Egyptologists are uncertain about the correctness of the “ancient” Egyptian names in their translation	429
5. Egyptian kings of the Hiksos epoch	431
6. The attitude to the Hiksos dynasty in Egypt. The epoch when the recollections of their reign started to get wiped out and the instigators of this process	432

Chapter 19 “Ancient” African Egypt as part of the Christian “Mongolian” Empire of the XIV-XVI century – its primary necropolis and chronicle repository

1. General overview of the 18th “ancient” Egyptian dynasty and its history	433
2. The “lunar”, or Ottoman dynasty of the Pharaohs, or “the dynasty of the crescent”	434
3. Amenkhotep I and Amenkhotep IV	435
3.1. Amenkhotep I	435
3.2. The religious reform of Pharaoh Amenhotep IV (Khunaten – Khan of the Don?). Islam branches away from Christianity	435
3.3. The foundation of Rome in Italy around the end of the XIV century AD as reflected in the “ancient” Egyptian chronicles	436
4. Pyramids and sepulchres	437
4.1. Who built the Great Pyramid of Khufu (Cheops)? When was it done?	437
4.2. The two other large pyramids	440
4.3. The sarcophagi of the Pharaohs and the Russian matryoshka dolls	442
4.3.1. The structure of an Egyptian sarcophagus	442
4.3.2. The anthropomorphic sarcophagi of Suzdal and Vladimir Russia	442
4.3.3. Tutankhamen’s telescopic coffins	444
4.3.4. The Muscovite coffin of gold	445
4.3.5. The mining of gold in the Middle Ages	448
4.3.6. Wreaths from Tutankhamen’s sepulchre	449
4.3.7. Pyramidal gravestones in Russia	449
4.4. Arabic lettering on the pyramids	450

4.5. The Egyptian pyramids, or burial mounds, and “Paskha,” the ritual Christian pastry	451
4.6. What was drawn on the destroyed pyramid jacketing?	452
4.7. Inscriptions on pyramids	454
4.8. Pyramids (or burial mounds) of white stone	455
4.9. Why the Great Pyramids were built	455
5. The gigantic funereal complexes of the “ancient” Egypt as the main imperial “Mongolian” cemetery of the XIV-XVI century. The identity of Tutankhamen	459
5.1. Imperial “Mongolian” cemetery of the XIV-XVI century	459
5.2. Russian Prince Dmitriy and Tutankhamen	467
6. A hypothesis: certain major constructions of the “antiquity” were made of concrete	471
7. The great forgotten invention of mediaeval alchemy: geopolymeric concrete of the Egyptian pyramids, temples and statues	478
8. Concrete in the “ancient” Roman Empire	488
9. The Mamelukes and the monuments of the “ancient” Egypt	493
10. Egyptian pyramids as the Scythian burial mounds	496
11. The capital of Egypt was known as Babylonia in the XVI century. Ottoman crescents with a star and the Ottoman “bunchuks” of the Cossacks over the “ancient” Egypt	502
12. Napoleon’s artists appear to have been afraid of reproducing the enormous Orthodox cross on the throne of the “ancient” Egyptian Colossus of Memnon in their accurate drawings	503
13. Napoleon’s artists reproduced the Christian motif of the Exaltation of the Holy Cross in their drawings of the “ancient” Egyptian Colossi of Memnon	509
14. The “ancient” Egyptian Osiris as Jesus Christ	511
15. The “ancient” Egyptian goddess Isis and her son Horus are most probably Mary the Holy Mother of God and her son Jesus Christ	512
16. The two famous boats of the “ancient” Egyptian Pharaoh Cheops (Khufu) were made of wooden boards. Therefore, they are of a very late origin, and their manufacture must have employed iron or steel saws	513
17. Slavic ornaments on the “ancient” Egyptian clothing	518

Chapter 20 Pharaoh Thutmos III the Conqueror as the Ottoman = Ataman Mehmet II, a conqueror from the XV century

1. The astronomical dating of the reign of Thutmos III by the zodiacs of Dendera concurs with the New Chronology of Egypt	519
2. The great conqueror of the XV century Pharaoh, Sultan and Ataman Thutmos III, also known as Mohammed (Mehmet) II	520
3. The capture of Kadesh = Czar-Grad by Pharaoh (Ataman) Thutmos in 1453	521
4. Relations between Russia, or the Horde, and the Ottoman = Ataman Empire in the XV century: two parts of the Great Empire	521
5. The Ataman conquest of the Mediterranean region, Asia Minor and Europe in the XV century, according to the “ancient” Egyptian texts	524
5.1. The conquest of Kadesh by Thutmos III	524
5.2. The location of the largest obelisk built to honour Thutmos III = Mehmet II	525

5.3. Another obelisk of Thutmos III = Mehmet II in Italy	526
5.4. The union of the Ruthen tribes	527
5.5. The new Ataman conquest of Europe in the XV century by Pharaoh Thutmos = Mohammed	528
5.6. A list of the numerous conquests of Pharaoh Thutmos = Sultan (Ataman) Mehmet	529
5.7. A list of cities conquered by Thutmos (Mehmet)	530
5.8. The Muscovite Kara-Kitais mentioned in the “ancient” Egyptian lettering	532
5.9. The land of the Russian Khan in Italy	532
5.10. The land of Kittis = Phoenicia, a.k.a. Venice, a.k.a. Scythia	532
5.11. The “ancient” Egyptian text of the Kara-Kitai king	534
5.12. Lists of valuables given as tribute to Pharaoh Thutmos by the Europeans	535
6. The Egyptian obelisk, the Serpent Column, the Gothic Column, and the knightly statue of Emperor Justinian in Istanbul. The name of Moscow	538
7. Some parallels between the biographies of Alexander the Great and Sultan Suleiman I the Magnificent	541
8. The location of Memphis and Thebes – the capitals of the “ancient” Egypt	542
9. Conclusion	544

Part VI: ANCIENT RUSSIA, WORLD HISTORY AND GEOGRAPHY IN MEDIAEVAL SCANDINAVIAN GEOGRAPHICAL TRACTATES

Chapter 21 The meanings of the familiar modern geographical names in the Middle Ages. The opinion of the Scandinavians

1. How we compiled the list of geographical identifications	547
2. Austria	548
3. Asia = Land of the Aesir. The Azov Sea	548
4. Armenia	549
5. Austrriki	549
6. Africa. What did the name stand for in the Middle Ages? Where can we find it on the map, given that “Africa” was inhabited by many European and Asian nations?	550
6.1. Armenians used to live in Africa	550
6.2. Scythia, including the Caspian North, was located in Africa	550
6.3. Our hypothesis: Africa in the Middle Ages = Tartary = Thracia = Turkey	550
6.4. African Germany	551
6.5. Byzantium was believed to be part of Africa	551
6.6. African Albania	551
6.7. The African Goths. Samaria (or Sarmatia) was located in Africa	552
6.8. The true identity of the “African” Mauritania	553
6.9. How many African lands were located in Europe and Asia initially?	553
7. Bland = “Black Land” or Babylon	553
8. The Great Svitjod (Saint) = Russia = Scythia	554
9. Vina. Byzantium. Volga. Eastern Baltic regions	555
10. Gardariki = Russia. Geon = Nile. Germany	555
11. The City (“Gorod” in Russian) = Grad = The Gods. Scandinavians and Europeans in general called Russia “Land of the Great God” and “Land of the Giants”	556

12. Greece = Grikland = Land of St. George	557
13. Dnepr. Don. The Danube. Europe. Egypt. The Western Dvina	558
14. India	559
14.1. The three Indias as the three Hordes	559
14.2. The horrendous and dangerous India	559
15. Cairo = Babylon. The Kama. The Caspian Sea. Kiev. Constantinople. Kanugardr = Kiev. Kylfingaland. Lake Ladoga	560
16. Miklagard in Thracia and Rome in Scythia (Russia)	560
17. The city of Murom. The Neva. Nepr. Novgorod = Holmgard. River Olkoga and the city of Olonets	561
18. Parthia	562
19. Perm and Bjarmaland	562
20. Polotsk. Paradise. Rostov	563
21. Russia	564
22. Saxland. Lesser Svitjod. Northern Dvina	565
23. Serkland	566
23.1. Is it correct that the land of the Seres, or Serkland, can be identified as the modern China?	566
23.2. Silk and combed plants: anything in common?	566
23.3. Serkland as the land of the Saracenes	567
24. Syria	568
25. Scythia	568
25.1. Scythia = Great Svitjod (Holy)	568
25.2. Scythia as Kitia, or China	569
25.3. Scythia or China in Africa	569
25.4. Scythia “named after Magog” and described as India	569
25.5. The gigantic size of Scythia and its individual parts – Alania, Dacia and Gothia	570
25.6. Scythia as the land of the Amazons	570
25.7. Scythia was also known as Scotia, or Scotland	571
26. Smolensk, Suzdal, Tanais, Tanakvisl, Tartarariki etc. Thracia = Turkey. Finland. Chernigov	571
27. Sweden = Lesser Svitjod	572
28. The ancient meaning of the word “Scandinavia”	573

Chapter 22 Corollaries. What the Scandinavian geographical tractates and maps report about the ancient Russia

1. How different nations referred to Russia, or the Horde	574
2. Rivers known as “Don” in the Middle Ages	575
3. Sons of the Biblical Japheth	575
4. The “Norman Theory” as perceived after a study of the Scandinavian maps	576

Addenda

1. What happened to the treasury of the Great = “Mongolian” Empire after the great divide of the XVII century	579
2. The Biblical Book of Revelation refers to the Ottoman = Ataman Conquest of the XV-XVI century	586

1. A brief rendition of the Apocalypse	586
2. The warlord Joshua son of Nun as the “second coming” of Jesus Christ in the XV-XVI century	587
3. The Great Apocalyptic Judgement as the invasion of the Ottomans = Atamans to the Western Europe in the XV-XVI century	588
4. The Apocalyptic division of nations into “pure” and “impure,” the righteous and the sinners and so on as a reflection of the “quarantine massacre” of epidemic areas of Europe and the Mediterranean region by the Ottomans = Atamans	595
5. Obvious traces of editing or even radical rewriting inherent in the Book of Revelation	596
6. A possible reference to Noah = Columbus and his voyage towards the New World in 1492 made by the author of the Revelation	598
7. Expectations of Doomsday in 1492 coincided with the departure of Noah’s (Columbus’s) fleet and the epoch of the Biblical Apocalypse	601
8. The canonization of the Book of Revelation as a memento of the Ottoman = Ataman conquest for future generations	603
9. Moscow events of the XVI century on the pages of Apocalypse	610
10. “Antique” Roman Empire is Great = “Mongolian” Empire of the XIV-XV century	610
3. Modern condition of the Egyptian zodiacs from Dendera and Esna	613
1. The Zodiacs of Esna	613
2. The Zodiacs of Dendera	614

Annexes

1. A complete list of sources used by Mauro Orbini (according to the Italian edition of 1606)	617
2. Fragment of Mauro Orbini’s book Origine de gli Slavi & Progresso dell’Imperio Loro	620

Bibliography	637
---------------------------	-----